

Scaling Up Workshops

Coach Cheat Sheet: IP & Economics

This one-page summary highlights the core elements of the Scaling Up Workshop License and Delivery Agreement. The intent is to create clarity, consistency, and a win-win partnership that allows coaches to confidently grow their businesses while protecting the Scaling Up brand and intellectual property.

Our Shared Goal

- Enable coaches to monetize premium Scaling Up workshops
- Protect the intellectual property that differentiates Scaling Up in the market
- Ensure consistent, high-quality delivery for clients
- Create aligned economics that support both coaches and the network

Intellectual Property (IP) – What to Know

- All workshop content is owned by Scaling Up and its contributors
- Coaches receive a non-exclusive license to deliver workshops while active and in good standing
- Workshops must always be delivered as Scaling Up workshops (not under another brand)
- Materials may not be modified, rebranded, or published publicly
- Branding, formatting, and attribution must remain intact
- Workshop rights end immediately if a coach exits the Scaling Up network

What Coaches Are Free to Do

- Deliver Scaling Up workshops to individual clients or groups
- Market workshops using approved assets
- Add your logo and bio in approved locations
- Build follow-on coaching, advisory, and client relationships
- Leverage Scaling Up partners and tools to enhance client outcomes

Economics at a Glance

Workshop Revenue:

- 75% to the Coach
- 25% to Scaling Up

Coaching Engagements from Workshop Attendees:

- Standard 10% revenue share applies for new coaching clients
- Existing coach clients are excluded

Partner & Referral Commissions:

- 50/50 split between Coach and Scaling Up
- Same split applies if a coach substitutes an equivalent provider

Why This Structure Works

- Coaches monetize high-value, proven content
- Scaling Up protects and reinvests in the IP
- Clients receive a consistent, premium experience
- Everyone benefits from a stronger, more differentiated brand

Scaling Up Workshops

Coach FAQ

Why is this agreement necessary?

As workshops become a core growth engine, we need clear standards that protect intellectual property, ensure consistent delivery, and support fair economics for everyone involved.

Do I own the workshop content I deliver?

No. The content is owned by Scaling Up and its contributors. Coaches receive a license to use the materials while they are active coaches in good standing.

Can I customize or modify the workshop materials?

No. To protect the integrity of the methodologies and brand, materials must be delivered as provided, using approved formatting, flow, and facilitation standards.

Can I use the workshop content outside of Scaling Up?

No. Workshops must always be delivered as Scaling Up workshops and not under another brand or coaching system. ONLY Certified, active Scaling Up Coaches may use the Workshop materials.

What happens if I leave Scaling Up?

Your license to use the workshop materials ends immediately. All materials must be deleted and workshop references removed.

How does revenue sharing work?

Coaches retain 75% of workshop revenue. Scaling Up receives 25%. Partner commissions are split 50/50. New coaching engagements from workshop attendees follow the standard 10% revenue share.

Why are workshop leads considered Scaling Up leads?

Workshops are powered by Scaling Up IP, brand, systems, and partnerships. Shared ownership of leads allows us to jointly nurture relationships and grow long-term value.

Is this agreement negotiable?

The workshop agreement is standardized to ensure fairness, consistency, and scalability across all coaches and the network.

Who do I contact with questions?

Please reach out to the Scaling Up team. Our goal is clarity, alignment, and mutual success.